The Royal Wedding.

On August 31st the announcement was made from Balmoral Castle of the engagement of Their Majesties' third son, the Duke of Gloucester, to Lady Alice Christabel Montagu-Douglas-Scott. The formal notification of His Majesty's consent was gazetted under date of October 3rd as follows:

> "[illegible]
> G.C.V.O., which Consent His Majesty has caused to be signified under the Great Seal and to be entered in the Books of the Privy Council"

The wedding took place on November 6th in the private Chapel at Buckingham Palace, the original arrangements for the ceremony to be held in Westminster Abbey having been cancelled in consequence of the death of the bride's father, the 7th Duke of Buccleuch. There are many happy precedents for the Duke choosing a bride of non-Royal rank, as of the Princes and Princesses of Great Britain descended from Queen Victoria no fewer than six have married into the Peerage, and in five of these cases it has been a Scottish family which has been thus honoured.

Marriages of other Great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria.

In addition to H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester three other of Queen Victoria's great-grandchildren have been married this year. The first of these, the Infanta Beatriz, the elder daughter of King Alfonso of Spain and Queen Victoria Eugenia, to Don Alessandro Torlonia, Prince of Civitella Cesi; the second, Princess Ingrid, only daughter of the Crown Prince of Sweden and the late Princess Margaret of Connaught, to the Crown Prince of Denmark; and the third, the Prince of the Asturias, brother of the Infanta Beatriz, to Princess Marie Mercedes, daughter of Prince Charles de Bourbon-Siciles, Infante of Spain.

Birth of a Son to Duke and Duchess of Kent.

The news of the birth of a son to T.R.H. the Duke and Duchess of Kent on October 9th was received with rejoicing, not only by the King and Queen, but by all their subjects both in this country and throughout the Empire. The baptism took place in the Private Chapel, Buckingham Palace, on November 20th, when the child received the names of Edward George Nicholas Paul Patrick. The little Prince is their Majesties' fifth grandchild, but their first grandson in the male line, and it is thirty years since the last analogous birth took place in the Royal Family, when Her Majesty the Queen, then Princess of Wales, gave birth to her youngest son, the late Prince John. It is interesting to note that the late King Edward VII had nine grandchildren, whilst Queen Victoria had no fewer than forty, three of whom died within a few days of their birth, and four others in early childhood.

the Council and a place was also found for his son, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald as Secretary of State for the Colonies. This is the first occasion since the days when the late Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Austen Chamberlain were respectively Colonial Secretary and Postmaster-General that father and son have sat in the same Cabinet.

Dissolution of Parliament and General Election.

The eighth Parliament of His Majesty, after lasting almost exactly four years, was dissolved on October 25th, and a General Election took place on November 14th, which resulted in the return of the National Government with a reduced majority. The New Parliament met for the election of the Speaker and the swearing in of Members on November 26th, and will be formally opened on December 3rd. Although the Election was held whilst DEBRETT was passing through the press, it has been possible to include in their appropriate places corrections necessitated under the entries of the individuals concerned.

Peers and M.P.s, 1910-35.

It is interesting to note that there are nearly 160 Peers, and 8 Peeresses in their own right, living to-day who had succeeded to their titles prior to the time of His Majesty's Accession, and that in the House of Commons which has just been dissolved there were 35 M.P.s who were also Members in 1910; of these, the Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, now President of the Board of Trade, had also the distinction of being a Member of the first Cabinet of the present Reign.

Three New Governors-General.

In the course of the year no fewer than three new appointments have been announced amongst the Governors-General in the Overseas Empire. The Earl of Bessborough, on the completion of his term of office in Canada, was succeeded by Mr. John Buchan, C.H., M.P., who was subsequently created Baron Tweedsmuir. Early in 1936 Lord Willingdon returns from India and will be succeeded as Viceroy and Governor-General by the Marquess of Linlithgow; whilst in Australia Sir Isaac Isaacs is retiring, and his place will be taken by Brigadier-General the Hon. Sir Alexander Hore-Ruthven, who was Governor of South Australia from 1928 to 1934, and of New South Wales at the time of the announcement of his new appointment. The conferment of a Barony upon Sir Alexander Hore-Ruthven was announced on November 22nd.

The Founder of the Baronetage.

How easy it is to fall into error regarding titles is demonstrated by the fact that recently a well-known public man referred to a Baronetcy of long standing as having been created in the reign of the Virgin Queen. It was not, however, until 1611—eight years after Queen Elizabeth's death—that James I instituted the hereditary degree of Baronet as existing to-day, and it is interesting to note what a comparatively large number of Baronetcies created during his reign are still in existence, there being no fewer than 52, nearly half of which, however, are now merged in Peerages.

During the time DEBRETT was passing through the press last year, the first and second holders of the McAlpine Baronetcy both died, the first on November 3rd and the second on November 16th; whilst this year the 15th Earl of Devon died in February and the 16th in June. Another case of brief tenure of a title in recent years is that of the Earldom of Chichester, the sixth peer dying on November 14th, and the seventh on November 22nd, 1926; this Peerage has changed hands no fewer than five times during the last fifty years. The Barony of Petre also has a record of quick successions, as the years 1884 to 1915 saw no fewer than six holders of the title.

Brief tenure of Titles.

By the death of the 7th Baron Vaux of Harrowden, who left no sons, the Barony became abeyant between his three daughters, the Hon. Mrs. Gilbey, the Hon. Mrs. Charlton, and the Hon. Dorothy Mostyn. This Barony dates back to 1523, when Sir Nicholas Vaux, a distinguished soldier and statesman, was summoned to Parliament as Baron Vaux of Harrowden. The Peerage had previously fallen into abeyance when Henry, the 5th Baron, died unmarried in 1662, and so remained until 1838, when it was terminated in favour of George Mostyn, the heir of the eldest sister (Mary, Lady Symeon) of both the 4th and 5th Barons. There are now seven other Baronies created by Writ of Summons which as at present situated may well fall into abeyance when the question of succession next arises, and nine which after a lapse of years have been revived in favour of the present holders.

Barony of Vaux of Harrowden falls into Abeyance.

It was in 1887, when Queen Victoria celebrated her first Jubilee, that Mr. Arthur G. M. Hesilrige became Editor of DEBRETT, and in the year of the Silver Jubilee of her grandson, King George V, he has relinquished that appointment for the less onerous one of Consulting Editor. Publishing Peerages as far back as 1784, it was John Debrett who gave his name to this standard work of reference and edited it himself for many years; he retired from business about 1814. Subsequent editions were edited by William Courthope (Somerset Herald 1854–66), by George William Collen (Portcullis Pursuivant of Arms 1841–78), and by his brother Henry Collen, the latter of whom was responsible for the production of the 1844 and 1849 volumes. In 1864 Messrs. Dean & Son purchased the copyright and issued an abridged volume, from which the modern DEBRETT has evolved. Since then the book has been published annually by the same firm—now Dean & Son, Ltd. For some fifteen years prior to Mr. Hesilrige's assuming the Editorship the book had been edited by the late Dr. Robert H. Mair.

Mr. Hesilrige becomes Consulting Editor.

Correspondents are reminded that it is not customary to include in DEBRETT particulars regarding persons who have died without surviving issue, neither is it usual to give the issue of deceased female collaterals. On the other hand, the omission of important facts such as dates of birth, details regarding marriage, etc., cannot be entertained, and it is pointed out that these are obtainable from official sources open to inspection by any member of the public, and in recording in DEBRETT they are but presented in a more convenient and concise form for reference purposes.

What "Debrett" does and does not include.

During the course of the year two more of the outstanding figures in the late War have died; Viscount Byng of Vimy who commanded the Third Army in France, and Earl Jellicoe who was Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Fleet 1914–16. Lord Byng of Vimy's title becomes extinct, and Lord Jellicoe, who was originally raised to the peerage as a Viscount, is succeeded by his only son. It should be noted that Lord Jellicoe's daughters are in succession to the Viscountcy which was granted to him in 1917 with a special remainder, as at that time he had no male issue The eldest of these—Lady Gwendoline Latham—now becomes heiress presumptive to this title

Deaths of two Famous War-time Commanders.

In the past twelve months only three hereditary titles—1 Peerage and 2 Baronetcies—have been affected as to succession by the European War. This makes a total of 32 Peerages and 37 Baronetcies that so far have suffered in this way On the present occasion the Peerage referred to was the Dukedom of Richmond, which passed at the death of the 8th Duke to his second son, the Earl of March, his elder son, Lord Settrington, having died of wounds received in action when serving in North Russia during 1919, while the 2 Baronetcies were (1) Reid of Springburn, Co. of City of Glasgow and of Kilmains, co. Ayr (cr. 1922), which on the death of the first Baronet passed to the second son, the eldest having been killed in action in 1915 at the battle of Loos, and (2) Stafford of Rockingham, co. Roscommon (cr 1914), another first Baronet, who has been succeeded by his younger son (surnamed Stafford-King-Harman), the elder having been killed in 1914.

War Effect on Successions.

The number of New Honours within the scope of DEBRETT (but not including promotions to higher ranks) distributed in the course of the twelve months, December 1st, 1934, to November 30th, 1935, is upwards of 630. Among these will be found 16 new Peers * (including two new Lords of Appeal in Ordinary who received Life Baronies); Baron Bledisloe was raised to a Viscountcy; 13 Peerage creations became extinct and one has fallen into abeyance †; 11 Members have been sworn of the Privy Council ‡ of either the United Kingdom or Northern Ireland; 14 names § have been added

My Acknowledgments.

The help and advice afforded by many of the Officers of Arms in England, Scotland, and Ireland, by the officials of the various Orders, and by members of other Government Departments, during the preparation of this edition of DEBRETT have been most valuable, and to them my thanks are due and tendered in full measure, as also to the thousands of correspondents all over the world who have been good enough to reply to communications sent to them.

PEERS AND PEERESSES (in each Degree) rank among themselves in the following order: those created (1) of England, (2) of Scotland, (3) of Great Britain, (4) of Ireland, and (5) of the United Kingdom and of Ireland created since the Union, according to the dates of their respective patents.

Baronets rank among themselves according to the dates of their respective patents only

Precedence of Ladies is always derived from the father, or husband, except in the case of a Peeress in her own right.

Official precedence, such as that of the Great Officers of State, confers no corresponding precedence on their wives or daughters

The wives and issue of Archbishops and Bishops at present have no special precedence as such.

A Dowager Peeress, or Baronetess, while a widow, by custom, takes precedence of the wife of the incumbent of the title

The children of a living Peer, or Baronet, have precedence above the children of the previous possessor, or possessors, of the title.

If the daughter of a Peer marries a Peer she takes her husband's rank, but if she marry the eldest or younger son of a Peer she ranks either according to her own inherent precedence (i e, as the daughter of her father), or according to that of her husband (i e, as the wife of the eldest or younger son of a Duke, Marquess, Earl, etc), whichever happens to be the higher, no matter what the courtesy title may be

To Foreign Ambassadors modern practice concedes precedence immediately after the Royal Family, while to Foreign Ministers and Envoys place is usually allowed after Dukes and before Marquesses

Foreign Titles of Nobility borne by British subjects afford their holders no precedence whatever in this country, and strictly speaking a Royal License should be obtained for their use.

ROYAL CROWN * (AS HERALDICALLY DEPICTED).

THE SOVEREIGN.

FIRST, in honour and dignity, as in power—indeed, the seat and fountain of all three—is the Sovereign, who possesses, according to Camden,

The coronation ceremonial is probably more splendid, emblematic, and elaborate in England than in any other country Instance the anointing with oil, poured into the golden anointing spoon with dove on the left), the several religious ceremonies, besides the insignia of royalty, among which regalia are a ruby ring, to signify faithfulness, the Armillæ, or bracelets (not now used), for good works purple robes, to attract reverence, and a diadem, to blazon glory, also the Orb (a golden sphere enriched with jewels and surmounted by a cross, the whole being some eleven inches in height), the emblem of her, direct descendant This constant preference of the direct line to the closest collateral branch distinguishes the European from some of the Asiatic orders of succession, and tends greatly to preclude confusion and discord

The male Heir Apparent has, since the institution of the title by Edward I (who, in 1301, conferred it on his son, Edward, born at Carnarvon in 1284), been usually but not invariably created Prince of Wales, and, since 1399, the Earldom of Chester has always been conferred, together with the Principality of Wales There is no succession to this title

* This plume of feathers, generally spoken of as "The Prince of Wales's feathers," is not in reality such, but is the badge of the Heir Apparent, in whom it is vested whether created Prince of Wales or not.

Prince Consort (husband of Queen Victoria) a new system was introduced, and the income now enjoyed in virtue of the Duchy rights is very considerable. The Sandringham estate was purchased out of a very large sum of ready-money, arising from the accumulation of the annual revenues of this Duchy during minority.

CORONET OF ELDEST SON OF THE SOVEREIGN

By course of the civil law he sits at the right hand of the Sovereign in all solemn assemblies of state and honour; but he has no kingly prerogatives, and acknowledges reverence to his sovereign

An old statute of Edward III enacts "that to compass or imagine the death of the King's eldest son and heir is crimen læsæ majestatis" (high treason).

On the union of the Crowns of England and Scotland, King James's son (Prince Henry) was created "Prince of Great Britain and Ireland," and this nominally higher title survives, but the more venerable honour long since caused the other to fall into disuse.

The theoretical forms laid down for the ceremony of creating and investing a Prince of Wales are thus:—

"He is presented before the King in his surcoat, cloak and mantle of crimson velvet, and girt with a belt of the same, when the King putteth a cap of crimson velvet

At the ceremony of investiture the Sovereign, having received the Letters Patent from the Lord Great Chamberlain, hands them to the Home Secretary to read, as follows —

The privileges enjoyed by peers were formerly very numerous Some of these would now be considered intolerable, while others have fallen into desuetude from the extinction of the matters and circumstances to which they related But some important ones continue, e.g. —

They are free from arrests for debt, as being the Sovereign's hereditary counsellors. therefore a peer cannot be outlawed in any civil action, and no attachment lies against his person; but if he becomes a bankrupt he cannot vote until his bankruptcy proceedings are ended.

They are free from attending courts leet, or sheriffs' turns, or, in cases of riot, the posse comitatus

In cases of treason and felony they are tried by their peers only, who give their verdict simply upon their honour, in a court specially fitted up at the expense of the Crown, in the middle of Westminster Hall

They may sit with their heads covered in

To secure the honour of, and to prevent the spreading of any scandal upon peers or any great officers of the realm, by reports, there is an express law, called scandalum magnatum, by which any man convicted of making a scandalous report, though true, against a peer of the realm, is condemned to

In case of a poll tax, peers bear the greatest burden, as everyone is then taxed according to his degree

Scotch Representative Peers are elected by their fellow-peers for one Parliament only.

Irish peers (not being representative peers) are permitted to represent English constituencies in the House of Commons, but cannot sit for Irish counties or boroughs

Duke.—This title is the highest of our designations of nobility. We have not "princes" outside the blood-royal. Indeed, so pre-eminent in dignity is the ducal title, that each royal prince on, or shortly after attaining, his majority is usually created a Duke, as if the latter were the superior distinction. Thus, Prince Alfred was created Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught.

DUKE'S CORONET

Much learned ingenuity has been expended in endeavouring to trace the origin of a title which has, in one meaning or another, existed since the origin of the Latin tongue—dux (a leader) indicating a leading man or chieftain; and, however antiquarians may refine upon the matter, there cannot be any doubt that the word "duke" means a man of the highest rank and mark.

Hollingshead, in his "Chronicle," fo. 235, says that "Kinge Edgar's second wife was called Alfreda, the daughter of the Great, about the year 970, is supposed to have been the first to regularly constitute the title of duke resembling their own.

The following passage from a quaint old writer gives an authentic account of the creation of the first English Duke:—

"The first Duke that I finde sence the Conquest was made by Kinge Eduard III. xj. regni sui; where he made of the earldome of Cornwayle a dutchye, and created the Black Prince, his eldest sonne, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwayle, and Earl of Chester, and I have a dede made by the said Black Prince,

The earl's coronation robe is the same as a duke's, except that he has only three rows of ermine, his cap is the same as theirs. It is uncertain when the coronets of dukes, marquesess, and earls were settled. Sir Robert Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, Viscount Cranbourne, was the first of that degree who wore a coronet. An earl's coronet is a circle of gold (silver gilt) chased as jewelled and bordered with ermine, heightened with eight pyramidical points, or rays, placed alternately with as many strawberry leaves, a large silver ball is placed on the top of each ray His style is Right Honourable, and he is addressed by the King or Queen as Our right trusty and entirely beloved cousin, and counsellor when of the Privy Council A countess has on her coronation robe three inches

Baron.*—Much obscurity prevails as to the ancient meaning, and even derivation of, the word baron; and eccentric speculations have been indulged in with respect to their ancient position By some it was supposed to have originally meant a hired soldier, by others, a free man or again, a man equal to any other man; and so on.
